

I am a person that travels by motor vehicle all across the USA as a part of my business. I have found that XM radio is a very valuable resource to me. Especially the local traffic and weather service that is offered. I have experienced that service to be much easier to find than the same type of information on a local radio station... and much, much easier to understand. Most all local radio stations assume that you are a local resident and talk in terms that only those familiar with local landmarks will understand. XM, on the other hand, gives their information in terms that anyone can understand. XM, thank you for this service... please expand to more markets. FCC, please do not allow a vocal and partisan lobby group to rob the people of the United States of this very essential service. To do so would be the equivalent of having allowed an association of Blacksmiths to halt the development, production and sales of automobiles at the start of the 20th century. Thank you for taking time to read my comments.
